The GoodVision Family is Growing

We are thrilled to introduce two new members of the GoodVision Liberia team!

Jackson T. Smith is the new Country Director for our Liberia project. Jackson recently worked as the Liberia Country Manager for Diagnomedics Ltd., where he forged alliances with the Ministry of Health and other international organizations that promote health. His desire to serve people drove him to work in Nigeria with the Bethesda Child Support Agency, in Liberia with Project Concern International, and at the Center for Liberia's Future. Through his commitment and hard work, Jackson has become a well-respected and accomplished social worker and health professional in Liberia. We are very lucky to have him as our Country Director and are eager to see all the amazing work ahead.

James Cooper joins GoodVision Liberia as the Finance and Administrative Manager. He has two years of experience in corporate finance and more than ten years as a finance manager and administrator for nonprofit organizations. James holds a master's degree in banking and finance along his bachelor's in accounting, and he has added several notable certificates to his resumé, including public sector finance and financial management for NGOs. James brings with him extensive international experience.

We are excited to welcome Jackson and James to the GoodVision team!

A busy few weeks...

GoodVision Liberia Technicians held 9 major outreaches in the last few weeks. They screened a total of 456 people, completed 283 refractions, distributed 180 pairs of glasses, and referred 29 people for further care. Our team has been keeping busy!

In case you missed it...

GoodVision USA recently attended the Benjamin Franklin Cummings Institute of Technology's Eye Ball to celebrate the opticianry students. Blair Wong, President of our Board, is the chairman of the Opticianry Department, and Dibby Bartlett, also on our Board, is a professor there.
